REN Web Certification

Definition

The definition of REN Web begins with a definition of REN. Railinc's Rate Electronic Data Interchange Network (REN) is a rate management system for North American railroads. REN enables railroads to define and publish rate and distribution information for the interline movement of freight using standard EDI messaging technology. REN is a system-to-system process.

REN Web is a web application that enables carriers to enter rates and divisions into the REN system from a web browser. The data, after passing all edits, is then distributed via EDI to any carrier in the route.

Purpose of Certification

The data exchanged through REN is the basis for exchanging rail prices. Therefore, timely, error-free exchange of information between railroads and the REN central database is critical. The REN certification process is designed to ensure the error-free prerequisite is met.

REN Web Certification verifies that an interfacing railroad:

1. Is willing and able to adhere to industry rate communication guidelines.
2. Has tested appropriate messaging channels to ensure successful auto-rating of interline rates.
3. Will meet industry performance levels and system specifications for REN participation.

Getting Certified

1. Contact Railinc to get started.
2. Get trained.
  - a. Identify those in your company that will be entering, publishing, or searching rates.
  - b. Identify an existing REN certified carrier to sponsor your road.
  - c. Email Railinc three of your rates prior to training. These rates will be used for the training.
  - d. Schedule the training session. Choose from on-site, web conference, or come to Railinc in Cary, NC.
3. Existing REN certified carrier sign off.
  - a. Transmit 3 rate dockets, 1 group, 1 revision of a group, and expire a rate through REN Web.
  - b. Existing REN certified carrier signs off on the certification.
4. Start entering and transmitting rates into REN Web.

FAQ

How long does training take?

Training takes anywhere from eight to fifteen hours, depending on the number of people and whether the training is in-person or over web conference.

Is there any system setup required?

You'll just need internet access. Railinc will set up appropriate access to REN Web.

Are my rates secure on REN?

Only carriers in the route can view rates they are associated with.

What other certifications are related to REN certification?

ISS certification goes hand-in-hand with REN certification and can occur concurrently.

What is read only access and who can be granted read only access?

Read only is an SSO user permission in REN Web, not a type of certification. The read only permission allows users search and view REN data but prevents submission of data through REN Web. The read only permission is granted to REN Central Participants or by REN Web Company Admins to other users at their organization.
